

'Gay' event in Boston caters to pre-teens

A pro-family activist in Massachusetts is disgusted by a recent pro-"gay" advent in Boston that targeted teens and young children.

The Bay State recently sponsored a Youth Pride Day "celebration" in Boston hosted by a cross-dressing man who was the former Miss Gay Massachusetts and a transgender Elvis impersonator, complete with a cross-dressing male "dancing girl" in a bikini. Brian Camenker of MassResistance says teens and some children as young as 12 were bused to the event using taxpayer monies.

"Throughout the day they had all kinds of things [at the event]," Camenker explains. "They had tables giving out a lot of homosexual literature to the kids -- condoms, things like that. A lot of people in the crowd were...female and male adults -- many of the males were dressed in women's clothes. And then they had a parade, where they organized the kids by school, which went by the State Legislature building which was about a block away."

Camenker says that night a "gay/transgender prom" was hosted at Boston City Hall for children age 12 through adults age 22. He says a disturbing part of that event was a leather-clad man named "Mr. Boston Leather" who greeted participants and handed out business cards. According to Camenker, marijuana was also being smoked at the event.

MassResistance! sent people to document the event. Video footage and photos can be found on the group's website.
